REMARKS

The Claims Satisfy 35 U.S.C. § 112

Claims 1 and 27 were said to lack antecedent basis for the elements “subset of suppliers,” “selected suppliers,” and “selected subset of suppliers.” Claims 1 and 27 both recite a “set of suppliers,” from which a “subset of suppliers” is subsequently selected. Any “set” will inherently include a number of “subsets,” and accordingly this rejection is clear error.

The claims were also said to lack agreement for use of both “selected suppliers” and “selected supplier.” A selected “subset of suppliers,” like any set, may include any number of suppliers. When one supplier is claimed, the claims use the singular form; when more than one supplier is claimed, the claims use the plural form. This rejection is also clear error.

The Drawings Satisfy 37 C.F.R. § 1.121(d)

Corrected drawings were requested because “in fig.’s 6, 8-14, 15A, 15B, 16A, 16B, 17, 19, 20A, 20B, and 21-28 the shaded portion of the drawing figure’s are not legible. The shading needs to be removed in order to read the text in the drawing figures.” Office Action at 3.

A copy of Figures 6, 8–14, 15A, 15B, 16A, 16B, 17, 19, 20A, 20B, and 21–28 were obtained using the Office’s PAIR system from the formal drawings filed on August 26, 2002, and are attached to these Comments as Exhibit A. Each of these figures bears the stamp of the Office of Initial Patent Examination, and none of these figures includes either shading or unreadable text. Accordingly, this rejection is clear error.

The Rejection Over Shkedy Fails to Consider Two Essential Elements of the Pending Claims

The Examiner has failed to consider two essential elements of independent claims 1 and 27 in rejecting those claims over United States Patent No. 6,260,024 to Shkedy. Accordingly, we respectfully submit that this rejection is improper and that claims 1 and 27, and the claims that depend therefrom, are allowable over Shkedy.

Independent claims 1 and 27 both recite, in part: (1) “utilizing, by a programmed computer, the objective function to select a subset of suppliers and determine an optimal award schedule for at least partial satisfaction of said requisition utilizing the selected suppliers,” and (2) where the “objective function” includes “non-price criteria.” (emphasis added) We respectfully submit that Shkedy neither teaches nor suggests the use of non-price criteria in an objective function or the determination of an optimal award schedule.

In overview, the present invention relates to “a computer-implemented method for determining an optimal award schedule for at least partial satisfaction of [a] requisition.” Application at ¶ 0011. A prospective buyer specifies constraints that prospective suppliers are invited to satisfy. Id. at ¶ 0012. The buyer’s constraints may include traditional price terms, such as a maximum price per item, but they may also include non-price terms such as time to satisfaction, quality, and quantity. Id. at ¶ 0013.

Prospective suppliers submit bids responsive to the buyer’s constraints and the system determines an optimal award schedule from those bids. Id. That is, in a typical auction in accord with the present invention, numerous suppliers will propose bids that more or less satisfy the buyer’s requirements. The inventive system will then determine which subset of those bidding suppliers will optimally satisfy the bid, evaluating each bid against the price and non-price terms specified by the buyer. “The optimal combination of suppliers, together with the list of items to be ordered from each supplier, is referred to as an optimal award schedule.” Id. at ¶ 0006 (emphasis added). The “objective function” is the formulation of the buyer’s price and non-price constraints and the seller’s constraints in its bid that is used by an optimization engine to determine the optimal award schedule. Id. at ¶ 0143.

In contrast, Shkedy describes a system for aggregating individual buyers’ purchase requirements into a single collective purchase requirement, and providing that collective purchase requirement to sellers willing to bid on the collective purchase requirement. Shkedy at Abstract. Shkedy teaches a simple “winner-take-all” system, where one seller providing the best bid wins all of the business. Id. at col. 3, ln. 55-57; col. 3, ln. 9-11; col. 6, ln. 29-30. In contrast, the applicants’ invention creates an “optimal award schedule” that allows multiple sellers to satisfy a buyer’s requisition in an optimal fashion, Application at ¶ 0006, and is recited in the claims as “utilizing, by a programmed computer, the objective function to select a subset of suppliers and determine an optimal award schedule for at least partial satisfaction of said requisition utilizing the selected suppliers” (emphasis added).

Moreover, while Shkedy allows prospective buyers to specify non-price criteria, such as a quantity, a pool date, and an outside delivery date, Shkedy at col. 5, ln. 13-16, Shkedy does not appear to teach that a prospective seller may provide bids that do not conform to these non-price criteria, or how to weigh a prospective seller's non-conforming non-price criteria against a bid price. In contrast, as recited in the claims, the applicant's invention allows a prospective buyer to specify an "objective function" including "non-price criteria" that adjusts a supplier's bid price by a "penalty term that depends on non-price factors associated with that supplier, such as the supplier's performance attributes, and a measure of how important the buyer considers those performance attributes." Application at ¶ 154. The use of the objective function including non-price criteria allows for the creation of an award schedule that is optimal with respect to both price and non-price criteria. Again, Shkedy appears to simply teach a winner-based all system that lets one seller providing a bid with the best price win all of a collectively-aggregated sale that includes non-price requirements.

The rejection of independent claims 1 and 27 is solely based on Shkedy, and the preceding discussion demonstrates how Shkedy fails to satisfy two essential elements of these claims. For these reasons, we respectfully submit that the rejection of independent claims 1 and 27 over Shkedy is clear error and we request the withdrawal of these rejections. The remaining claims, which depend therefrom, are therefore allowable.

CONCLUSION

In light of the foregoing, we respectfully submit that there are clear errors in the Examiner's rejections and that the Examiner has failed to consider essential elements of the independent claims in the present rejection.

Respectfully submitted,
